

“Ok, people. Let’s get everything torn down properly and neatly. Seems as though we are moving in the morning.” He started to get all his personal notes together.

“I need to leave something so that someone can find us.” Lehovics mind was racing as he was considering the true implications of what The Bell meant. He started wondering about letting the Allies know what he was working on, even if it meant his life. “But I am proud to be German. I am proud to be...” He couldn’t finish that thought and he didn’t know why.